Generation No. 1

1. THOMAS¹ TUNNELL was born Abt. 1629 in prob. England, and died Abt. 1671 in Accomack Co., Va.. He married -- Abt. 1658 in prob. Northampton Co., Va.. She died Bef. 1671 in Accomack Co., VA.

Notes for THOMAS TUNNELL:

Thomas came to the New World in August 1649, landing at St. Mary's City, the provincial capital of Maryland. He labored in the tobacco fields on the plantation of William and Ann Johnson there for five years to pay for his passage. In 1655, age 25, he gained his freedom. Political events were about to influence his direction. Factions had formed long since between those who held with the "Proprietaries" (the proprietor being, of course, Lord Baltimore), and the "Parliamentarians" who considered Oliver Cromwell and Parliament to be supreme. Cromwell had received his powers back in late 1653 and was on the ascendancy; affairs in the Province began to reflect those in the Commonwealth of England.

Thomas Tunnell was of the view that the agrarian life could now keep for awhile, and he would take up soldiering in the cause of what he believed to be the rightful government in Maryland under the yellow and black striped banner of Cecil Calvert, the second Lord Baltimore. He received a commision as a lieutenant in the local militia from ex-Governor Stone. In St. Mary's City, Stone completed his strategy to rid Provincetown of the traitorous Parliamentarians. The Civil War of England was about to cause blood to be shed in a battle on American soil. Stone and his lieutenants assembled about 200 soldiers and began to move them north by land and by sea in twelve shallops (sloops). The approach of the Loyalists was discovered and so they pulled on their oars, heading up the mouth of Ferry Creeke adjacent to Provincetown in Anne Arundel County. One of the Roundhead's ships, armed with two bow cannons, pulled in behind them and anchored at the mouth of Ferry Creeke, effectively blocking the Loyalists' escape over water. The soldiers of Anne Arundel were clad in Venice red, the uniforms of the Parliamentary Army -- they represented the first appearance of the "Red Coats" in America. They marched as a company six files deep over the six miles to meet the loyalist Proprietary army. The flag of the Commonwealth of England was handed to young William Ayres, about 8:00 o'clock a.m. March 26, 1655. Before the sun was overhead, he would be dead. Stone had deployed Lieutenant Thomas Tunnell and Lieutenant Richard Banks with a few men to take one of the three outlying forts and act as sentries with respect to the approach of the enemy. The battle was joined on a spit of land called Burle's Towne Land. The Loyalists, assembled under the yellow and black striped colors of Lord Baltimore, got off the first shots. The Parliamentarian's front rank fired, then crouched, reloaded, and the file immediately behind them stood and fired again. It was the tactic of the New Model. Many of Stone's men fell. The front rank then stood and fired. The will of the Proprietary men to fight on was now broken except for three or four sheltered and firing behind a huge fallen tree. They were soon flanked and eliminated. In less than half an hour, the Battle of the Severn was over. Tunnell and Banks surrendered their fort.

On April 24, 1655, Thomas Tunnell was tried in Patuxent Provincial Court for being "in armes" against the present government. His defense was that he was misled and confused by Captain Stone who, Tunnell testified, had stated to him that he had power from the Lord Protector himself (Oliver Cromwell). Tunnell escaped with his life, but was fined 1,000 lbs. of tobacco. This was, at the time, to one in his financial position, an absolutely confiscatory measure that caused him to forfeit any estate he had nor hope to readily raise and thus ended Tunnell's dreams of staying on in Mary Land. After Lord Baltimore's full restoration of powers the following year, in 1656, Lord Baltimore remembered Thomas Tunnell's services and directed his new representative, Governor Josias Fendall, to show Tunnell favor. His exact language was as follows:

"That they cherish & comfort in what they can all such persons as have approved themselves faithful to his LoP and don good service in the late troubles there: that his LoP's said Lieut. preferre those persons before any others to such places & employments of trust and profitt as they may be respectively capable of & and in particular Mr. Thomas Truman, Mr. George Thompson, Lieut. Thomas Tunnell & Mr. Barton & that his said Lieut. and Counsell lett his Lordship understand from time to time wherein he can upon any occasion requite them & others who have been faithful to his Lordship as aforesaid....." (Archives of Maryland, Vol. III, p. 326)

By this time, however, Thomas had fled across the Chesapeake Bay to the Eastern Shore of Virginia, and found work in Accomack County. He married and began farming. The main cash crop was tobacco, followed by corn, when Thomas was starting on his own in the Upper Seaside. Perhaps he himself smoked the "Virginia weed". Thomas Jr. was born in 1658 or 1659 and Nathaniel in 1660 or early 1661. On Oct 17, 1667 Thomas Tunnell received a certificate for 200 acres for transporting people into Accomack County. By now such certificates in his possession totaled 700 acres. He received a confirming patent deed dated October 30, 1669 for 700 acres at Accocomson (Va. Land Office Patent and Grants, Patent Book 6, p. 258), a locality near present day Oak Hall, Accomack County.

A curious court entry for 16 February 1665 states that "Thomas Tunnill and Richard Johnson" posted security to support an illegitimate child born to one Mary Vincent. (McKey, "Accomack County Va. Court Order Abstracts" Vol. 1, p. 91b of the original court entries) as the result of a liason with Aminidab, a black farm hand of Southy Littleton's. The son was also named Aminidab. The father had died by early 1665, and a memo is preserved dated April 14, 1665 in which Southy gave to "ye sonne of my servant Aminidab, negro, deceased and Mary Vincent, three cows and their female increase which were formerly given to my said servant"; P. Heinegg, Free African Americans of North Carolina and Virginia. Mary Vincent subsequently married John Oke (Oakey) on Oct 2, 1666 in Somerset County, MD, whither they and her son Aminidab were transported; Somerset Co. Marriages Liber IKL; Somerset Co. Liber 16, Folio 308). Why Thomas was mixed up in this matter remains uncertain.

In 1669 Thomas paid his tax for having a tithable that year, which would have been himself. In 1670, he paid for two tithables.

But as of the next year, in 1671, Thomas Tunnell vanished from the records. Death must have overtaken him quickly for he left no will. No wife came forward to administer his estate nor claim the protection of a dower interest, either. It would seem she had predeceased him. Thomas died at 42 years of age. He had lived a full life's expectancy for that day.

Children of THOMAS TUNNELL and -- are:

Generation No. 2

2. NATHANIEL*² TUNNELL (*THOMAS*¹) was born 1661 in Accomack Co., Va., and died June 1696 in Accomack Co., Va.. He married MARY TAYLOR? Abt. 1682 in Accomack Co., Va., daughter of SAMUEL TAYLOR. She was born Abt. 1663 in Accomack Co., VA, and died Aft. 1712 in Accomack Co., VA.

Notes for NATHANIEL* TUNNELL:

It is probable that Nathaniel was raised by Col. Southy Littleton at the latter's plantation at Nandua. Southy was undoubtedly Nathaniel's godfather. In his will dated September 16, 1679, Southy gave to Nathaniel Tunnell all his remaining interest in the farmland at Accocomson, the rather intimate gift of his entire wardrobe, plus two cows and calves, plus a free year's service of one of the servants. Inside three weeks, Col. Southy Littleton was dead. He was 33.

Nathaniel Tunnell was by now 19. Although technically still under the age of majority by two years, he would soon be planning to spruce up and restart the family farm at Accocomson. The year 1682 shows him as head of the household there, paying the taxes due. He also met and married his Mary. (Quite possibly she was Mary Taylor, the only daughter of neighboring farmer, Samuel Taylor.) Their union would produce five sons: Washbourne, Nathaniel Jr., Edmund, Scarburgh and Elias. On Dec. 28, 1682, Nathaniel Tunnell was named as a defendant in a lawsuit brought by one John Cole. The court determined the matter to be "without cause" and dismissed it (McKey, Vol. 6, p. 325.) The next month, January 1683 Nathaniel was hailed into court along with John Carey and charged with "Sabbath-breaking". (Vol. 6., 330). He served on a jury in November 1689, Feb 1692 and June 1695.

Son Washbourne's godfather was Nathaniel's friend, the eminent Clerk of the Court of Accomack County, John Washbourne. Both Edmund and Scarburgh's godfather was, without a doubt, Col. Edmund Scarburgh, Jr., who was the dominating son of the equally indomitable, late Col. Edmund Scarburgh (d. 1671). Col. Edmond Scarburgh Jr. gave, in the year 1690, Nathaniel Jr. and Edmund, one mare each. Nathaniel Sr. was to keep the horses until Edmund turned 16, and for his trouble Col. Scarburgh provided that Nathaniel Sr. could keep any colts that were foaled in the interim by either mare. Nathaniel Tunnell Sr. took the document of gift down to John Washbourne and had him enter it on the record on June 10, 1690.

On April 4, 1693, Nathaniel performed the solemn duty of going over to witness the will of his father's old friend and their neighbor, John Wallop. Another witness was neighbor Samuel Taylor. In the Spring of 1696, Nathaniel took ill. He was just 36, with five minor children. He decided to give his elder son, Washbourne, his gun, the home his father had built, and then split the 400-acre tract into five equal parts, one for each boy. Mary Tunnell buried him and then married Charles Stockley before she had even probated the will. Times were like that.

Notes for MARY TAYLOR?:

We know she was alive in 1712 because she joined her sons in a deed for 240 acres of the old farmstead to neighbor Samuel Taylor in that year (i.e., possibly her brother)

Notes for FREDERICK* W. TUNNELL:

The ninth child born to Charles and Sallie, he was 11 when the Civil War ended. He graduated from the Georgetown Academy in 1871, at age 17. Shortly thereafter, he left lower Delaware for the bright lights of Philadelphia.

He started in business that same year. After his marriage, in 1879 he and two partners, Harvey K. Rearkirt and Samuel S. Talbot went into the glue making business together. About three years later, Frederick borrowed $20,000 and bought out their interests. From 1885 to 1900, the firm name was "F.W. Tunnell & Co." Like tanneries and other noxious enterprises, the plant was located north of the city beyond the populated areas. It made glue, and later (1900) fertilizer, from all-natural substances: dead horses.

Meanwhile, Frederick became active in the First Methodist Church of Germantown, where he was a trustee and taught Sunday School. His father in law John Welch, and good friend Bill Shelmerdine, served with him on the Board.

In 1900, the eldest son Raymond started working in the family business. Frederick in that year dropped the "k" in his first name for the most part, considering "Frederic" more befitting. In 1902, F.W., Carrie and their youngest son Bert went abroad, touring exotic places such as Egypt. In 1910, a new corporation was formed: "F.W. Tunnell and Co., Inc.". He and his two older boys were the first officers.

About this time, F.W. and Carrie moved from the 100 block of W. Tulpehocken Street to a large house at 250 W. Tulpehocken St., in the swank Germantown section of Philadelphia. There he lived out the last years of his life, dying in 1917 of what was called "paralysis agitans". Buried at Ivy Hill Cemetery, Easton Rd., Phila.

In April, 1918 he enlisted as a private in the Field Artillery Corps TS, U.S. Army. In May he went to Louisville, KY and entered Central Officers Training. He graduated in November, 1918 and received a commission as a 2nd Lt., Field Artillery. But that same month, the Armistice was signed, ending WWI. Married a Catholic girl from a large family. Member of the Merion Golf Club, the Rosemont Civic Assn, and the Fourth Street Club.

He was Vice President of the F.W.Tunnell Company for many years. He rarely spoke to his own brother, who was the other managing officer of the concern--they communicated through their secretaries, and only when they had to. The concern did not survive their management, and closed in the mid 1950's.

Fond of drinking and smoking, he died of lung cancer. Buried at Calvary Cemetery, West Conshohocken, PA
